REGULATION OF STEAMER RATES AGREED UPON

Representatives of the United States and British Governments to Make Standard Scale

(By Associated Press)
Washington, July 23.—The regulation of ocean steamship rates between the United States and Great Britain has been agreed upon by representatives of the American and British governments.

representing the state department and representatives of the British Admiralty to make the rates effective and bring down the prohibitive high rates that now exist. France and Italy have signified their intentions of accepting the provisions as ratified by the two countries.

HAPPENINGS IN WAR THEATRE

Unlimited power has been given by the Russian provincial government to Premier Kerensky to grapple with the sinister forces which threaten to wreck the new Russian government, born in the March revolution.

The grant was made by the most powerful representative body in the nation, the Council of Soldiers and Workmen, delegates and peasants assembled in Petrograd, which not only selected Kerensky as Premier but as minister of War and Minister of Marine.

It is apparent that the vast powers vested on him amount virtually to a dictatorship, which the war situation demands consideration chiefly at two points where Germany has concerted her main efforts.

The yielding portion of the Russian front being in Eastern Galicia and the second on the French front near Crayonne.

In the former war theatre there is very little change in temper of the Russian troops sufficient to bring about effective resistance to the Teutonic progress.

On the western front the gallant resistance of Gen. Petain's troops have kept the enemy from making only small gains and these have been made with great sacrifice of life.

MEMBER OF SHIPPING BOARD HAS RESIGNED

(By Associated Press)
Washington, July 23.—John B. White of Kansas City has resigned as a member of the shipping board commission and, President Wilson is said to have accepted the resignation.

Officials at the White House declined to say whether the resignation was due to the trouble that exists between Sherman Denham and Major General Goethals.

SPOKE AT HAMPTON BEACH

Deputy Secretary of State Hobart Gilibury was at Hampton Beach on Saturday where he delivered an address on the work of the State Public Safety Committee and the Defense League, at a patriotic meeting arranged by Secretary Jas. W. Tucker of the Hampton Beach Board of Trade.

Petrograd, July 23.—The Council of Soldiers and Workmen, delegates and peasants from all parts of Russia, after an all night's session voted to grant the government of Premier Kerensky "unlimited powers" under the title of the "government of national safety" for the purpose of restoring order both at the front and at home.

OUT AGIN, IN AGIN, AND ASLEEP AGIN

Police Find Drunk Caged Behind Iron Fence of the North Church.

Deputy Ducker and Patrolman McLean ran into a funny one today in which somebody helped the police out by acting as a detention officer, establishing a detention quarters as an auxiliary to the police station.

Patrolman McLean sent in a call for the police to transfer a drunk who was snoring away on the steps of the North Church. For some reason the patrol was delayed in arriving at the church and McLean continued to look after the traffic while he supposed the drunk was still resting peacefully on the stone steps of the church.

When the patrol arrived Mac took a slant over toward the church and found the drunk gone. The officers then took a look around the church and to their surprise they could see the drunk peeping through the iron bars of the high fence on the Church street side of the church. They scratched their heads and asked the drunk how he got in there. The drunk didn't know any more about it than the cops, but he was eager all right.

The police later discovered that some one had taken the trouble in the excessive heat to move the drunk from the steps to the iron cage around the church, putting him in through a gate in the rear which was unlocked by the painters working on the building. He was soon "out agin," "in agin" and "asleep agin."

BROKE WINDOW IN ROW OVER THE PRICE OF RESTAURANT EATS

Alex. Shunlook, a resident of Russell street, was busy at the North End near the midnight hour on Saturday. He entered the restaurant of Frank Letterio and tucked away a lot of macaroni and other eats under his belt. When he took off the feed bags the proprietor told Alex how much darby was coming to the cashier and Alex after counting his cash put up a kick. He called Letterio a bum and not only that, he smashed a window. The patrol came along and Alex took a ride. When he found out that he was in bad and would have to face the court he was willing to pay for the glass. There was another kick on the price of $1 and it was finally decided that Alex should cough up for the amount of the bill after repairs had been made. He may pay $1 and he may not. Anyhow he escaped the usual $11.13.

LAWN PARTY AT DRAKE RESIDENCE, RYE

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Drake, Stillman at Rye, was thrown open to the public on Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 for the benefit of the New Hampshire hospital unit of the state militia. The grounds are the most attractive of the beach summer homes and there was a large crowd from the surrounding country. Major J. K. Knowlton and staff of the hospital unit were present to assist. The Drakes were also assisted by several neighbors and friends. Motor parties from all along the shore called to enjoy the tea and to contribute. A good sized sum was realized and the affair was a complete success.

PRESIDENT TO TAKE HAND IN FOOD BILL

Will Probably Use His Personal Influence to Have Senate Accept a Single Food
Administrator Instead of Three

(By Associated Press)
Washington, July 23.—President Wilson will probably bring his personal influence to bear upon the senate in their conference on house provision of the food bill to accept a single food administrator instead of three.

The President will also take a hand at some of the other conflicting sections.

The President is understood to favor the stopping of the manufacture of distilled liquors, but to allow the manufacture of wines and malt liquors.

The house put in a bone dry clause in the bill.

The President has heretofore opposed a congressional committee to investigate the conduct of the war and there is no reason to believe that he has changed in this respect.

SUFFRAGETTES AGAIN ON THE JOB

(By Associated Press)
Washington, July 23.—Eight suffragettes of the Women's party took their positions this morning in front of the White House gates carrying banners on which were inscriptions from speeches of President Wilson. They attracted but little attention and the solitary policeman had no trouble in keeping the thoroughfare cleared.

EXETER

Exeter, July 23.—There was intense interest in the draft numbers here Saturday, many calling at the office of the exemption board. Several prominent Exeter business men were among the early numbers drawn out, and the entire lists contained others. Two members of the Coast Artillery company were among the numbers drawn, but the professional ranks were not called in this section, there not being a doctor or lawyer on the list.

Albertus T. Dudley and family left Saturday for Randolph, where they will spend the remainder of the summer at their summer home.

David Sarette and other members of the Manchester police force made a brief visit to headquarters here Saturday to call on Chief E. A. Barker. They were on their way to Portsmouth to play the Marine baseball team. Sarette is a former Exeter boy.

Rev. John D. Leach, pastor of the Methodist church, preached the sermon at Hedding yesterday afternoon. The subject of the sermon in the morning at the Methodist church here was "The Secret of His Presence."

DIDN'T GET THE JOB

Maurice E. McLoughlin, the lawn tennis star, was talking about a player who had failed to make good.

"The man won't train," he said. "He won't work. He won't deny himself. His disposition is a good deal like a ramp."

"Want a job diggin' potatoes?" a farmer asked a tramp.

"Yes, the tramp answered, "if you mean diggin' 'em out of graves."

TIME TABLE FOR SEVEN DAY AERIAL JOURNEY

(By Associated Press)

London, July 23.—The first time table for a seven-day aerial journey from London to India and back as recently suggested by Lord Montagu, in an address on world's air routes, was as follows:

First day—Croydon (London) depart 7 a. m., arrive at Marseilles (825 miles) 12.30 p. m., depart 1.30 p. m., arrive at Naples (485 miles) 6 p. m., total 1110 miles.

Second day—Leave Naples at 7 a. m., arrive at west coast Crete (640 miles) 12.15 p. m., depart 1.15 p. m., arrive at Alexandria (485 miles) 5.45 p. m., total 1,125 miles.

Third day—Leave Alexandria at 7 a. m., arrive at Jeddah (530 miles) 12 noon, depart 1 p. m., arrive at Basrah (460 miles) 5 p. m., total 1010 miles.

Fourth day—Leave Basrah at 7 a. m., arrive at Bandar Abbas (575 miles) 12 noon, depart 1 p. m., arrive at Karachi (530 miles) at 5.30 p. m., total 1,135 miles.

Total distance, 4530 miles; actual flying time 39 hours, 15 minutes; total time on journey 83 hours 30 minutes.

On the return journey Lord Montagu suggested that the first day's flight should carry the voyager to Capri, on the Caspian Sea, 1,220 miles; the second day to Tarnopol, 1210 miles; the third day to London, 1200 miles.

The total distance of the return journey would be 3630 miles, the actual flying time 30 hours and 15 minutes, and the total time consumed on the return 59 hours.

THE WAY NOT TO KEEP YOUNG

Our Cousin Emma is only 40 years old, but she doesn't look to be a day under 60. Worry has been the cause. She has worried almost constantly for fear that she would look old and that her husband wouldn't like her. She has dieted herself in order to remain young. She never eats as much as she wants or the kind or food she wants. She seems to think that punishing herself in this manner will keep off old age. (And she sleeps with a view of remaining young. She goes to bed at 6 o'clock every afternoon and she remains in bed until 7 o'clock in the morning. The remaining 11 hours of the 24 she spends in trying to rub youth and beauty in her cheeks. Claude Callan in Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

NO CHILD'S PLAY, TROOPS LEARN

Men in Camp in France Listen to Informal Addresses from Chaplains.

American Training Camp in France, July 23.—The chaplains with the American troops began their Sabbath duties here early yesterday and by seven o'clock most of them were in automobiles which carried them from one engagement to another.

They spoke briefly to the men, delivering no sermon in the customary sense of the word, but talking to and with the soldiers. The substance of their talk was an admonition to the men to remember they were engaged in a man's game, not a child's and to act accordingly.

More than one chaplain paid high compliment to the soldiers for their manly bearing and urged continuance of the attitude which has permitted the men to settle down in the community without any of the evils that sometimes occur in such circumstances.

The services yesterday which were the first since the arrival of the troops, were undemonstrative in the main. Soldiers of the Catholic faith not only attended the chaplain's talks, but in many instances went to the small Catholic churches that dot this section of France.

It was a day of rest for the men, who were relieved of their drilling and long hikes. In the afternoon there was a baseball game. Thousands utilized the opportunity to write home and the officers who acted as censors had anything but relaxation.

The main body of newspaper correspondents is expected to arrive today and join the representatives of the press associations who are already installed here. There first duty will be to undergo vaccination for typhoid. All the correspondents, of whom there are 12, will then be quartered in a chalet near headquarters.

A large group of American and French officers left today for French and British military schools to undergo a lengthy course of training in modern warfare. When the course is completed other officers will take their places, and later non-commissioned officers will have the same opportunity.

The general in command of the camp refused to relax on Sunday his strenuous daily program and went off for another inspection trip.

The first real baseball game which the camp has had since its establishment took place yesterday afternoon thanks largely to the efforts of the Young Men's Christian association which has organized a regular company league of six teams and plans to extend its work considerably, as soon as equipment arrives. The first troops had hardly reached here when the representatives of the Young Men's Christian association were on hand and their "hut" was one of the first buildings in operation.

Despite the small amount of material which it has to work with, the organization has already established a small circulating library which is in tremendous demand and is supplying the men with most of the paper on which they are writing home. It has been able to open a small canteen with English tobacco in lieu of American cigarettes, which have not yet arrived in sufficient abundance. The camp Y. M. C. A. is in touch with headquarters in Paris, from which it expects soon to draw materials for an extensive canteen and a large library of books and magazines. Eventually there will be a hut at each engagement where it is stated periods the men will have an opportunity of seeing moving picture shows.

The Y. M. C. A. men already here and those who will come as fast as the huts are erected are experienced in association work. Many of them have been with the armies in the field. Their efforts are greatly appreciated by the troops, who utilize the advantages of the hut to the full.

RED CROSS COMMISSION FOR SER VICE IN ROUMANIA

Washington, July 22.—As a further step in its program for basing American relief work abroad on accurate surveys of conditions, the Red Cross War Council, of which Henry P. Davison is Chairman, announces the dispatch of a Red Cross Commission to Roumania.

This is the third Red Cross Commission to be sent to Europe since the organization of the War Council, to make first-hand investigations in belligerent countries. One Commission, headed by Major Grayson M. P. Murphy, is already at work in France; a second, under the leadership of Dr. Frank Billings, will arrive in a few days in Russia.

The Commission to Roumania, which is headed by Henry Watkins Anderson, a prominent lawyer of Richmond, Virginia, will undertake at once, in addition to its investigation of sanitary and health conditions, actual relief work among the Roumanian refugees. To do this work a Red Cross medical unit of twelve doctors and twelve nurses accompanies the Commission.

Quantities of medical supplies, serums, vaccines, and foodstuffs, urgently needed in Roumania, are being sent with the Commission. A special emergency appropriation of $200,000 has been voted for Roumanian relief.

"For the Commission to Roumania, as for those sent to France and Russia, the Red Cross War Council has been unusually fortunate in obtaining the services of some of the leading health and sanitary authorities of the country," said Mr. Davison today in announcing the appointment. "It is one of the finest tributes to the patriotism of the men—doctors, lawyers, engineers and business men—who have been called upon to undertake, at very great personal inconvenience, and often with no inconsiderable risk, these Red Cross missions in distant countries, that they have responded without hesitation. No finer record will be written in this war than of these men who have gone forth under the Red Cross to carry aid and encouragement to those countries which for three years have been feeling the heavy brunt of war."

In addition to Mr. Anderson, the Chairman, the members of the Commission to Roumania, as announced by Mr. Davison, are:

Arthur Graham Glasgow, an Engineer of Washington, D. C. Mr. Glasgow is one of the leaders of his profession, and has lived for more than twelve years in London where he maintained extensive offices.

Dr. Francis W. Peabody of Boston, who represented the Rockefeller Foundation in its medical investigations in China.

Bernard Flexner of Chicago, a lawyer who has taken a prominent part in many sociological movements in the Middle West.

Dr. H. Gideon Wells, of Chicago, Professor of Pathology in the University of Chicago.

Dr. Roger Griswold Perkins, of Cleveland, Professor of Hygiene, Western Reserve University.

Dr. Robert C. Bryan, of Richmond, Virginia, who is one of the leading surgeons of the South.

Doctors and Nurses of the Medical Unit accompanying the Commission are:

Dr. W. D. Kirkpatrick, Bellingham, Washington; Dr. Richard Penn Smith, Fort Loudon, Pa.; Dr. D. J. McCarthy, Davenport, Iowa; Dr. Geo. T. Massenberg, Macon, Ga.; Dr. H. H. Hamilton, Syracuse, N. Y.; Dr. B. C. Hamilton, Syracuse, N. Y.; Dr. Benjamin Earl McMaster, Macomb, Ill.; Dr. Louis H. Linauro, Lynn, Mass.; Dr. E. P. Hild, Round Brook, N. J.; Dr. W. T. Lowe, Pine Bluff, Arkansas; Dr. Joseph P. H. Givens, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. Geo. Duco Guet, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. Wm. J. Kuehn, New Prague, Minn.

From Epine de Chevreign southward to Corbay, a distance of twelve miles the artillery of the Crown Prince hampered the French line for hours in the early morning and then attacked in large effective several points only to be hurled back by withering fire from rifles and machine guns. In places the fighting took the form of hand-to-hand conflicts between the two forces so close did the opposing armies clash.

Several attacks were thrown against Chasmeaux plateau but these were all successfully repulsed by the French and at no point did the Teuton forces gain a foothold with the exception of a stand on the Calomni plateau which is still being hotly contested.

The situation on the eastern front is still serious and this is recognized by the Russian Provisional government. The cracking of the Russian line has caused a retreat in the region of Zoloch and the railroad at several points is in the hands of the Germans according to a report from Berlin.

At the Sereth Bridgehead the Russians were again forced to retire from Tanopol and the railroad from Tanopol to Kozowa is also in possession of the Germans at several points, according to official information from Berlin.

If the situation becomes more serious and the center of the Russian line fails to hold it is believed that it will mean the general retreat of the Russian forces from Halicz, M. Kerensky, the Russian Premier, who led in person the great drive of the Russians which was so successful early in July, has again returned to the front, probably with the object of stemming the dissatisfaction of the troops which is threatening the success of the allies.

That the situation is regarded as serious is shown by the proclamation issued by the Provisional Government, calling for loyalty to the cause of Russian democracy and a firm stand against the nation's enemies.

British Coast Again Raided: Again German airplanes have raided the eastern coast of England and dropped bombs, killing 11 and wounding 26 persons. British airmen set out in battle, driving off the raiders and chasing them across the seas, bringing down one machine.

WHEAT SUPPLY BIG ISSUE IN RUSSIA NOW

(By Associated Press)

Petrograd, July 22.—How is Russia to induce to its peasant farmers to part with their precious stocks of wheat. That is the question which is wringing the brow of the Minister of Supply, H. Peshekhoff. Discussing the subject before the All-Russian Congress of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, he said:

"The greatest difficulty of the food situation just now is that the peasants refuse to give up their wheat. In the old days wheat was to be had in exchange for money. But now money is cheap, and there is little to be got for it. The peasant is therefore extremely unwilling to exchange his wheat for more money. The peasant population has lost its faith in money and stocks to the one thing which it has in its hands."

"There are plenty of things that the peasant needs more than he needs his wheat, but unless you can make those things available to him in his markets you won't be able to get his wheat. The forcible seizure of wheat from many million peasants is impossible. Yet something must be done to prevent starvation in our cities. If starvation should come to Petrograd no power on earth could prevent the collapse of whatever Government happens to be in power."

"It is task before the Ministry of Supply, then, is to secure for the peasants supplies of manufacturers and wares which they need. It is getting back to first principles of barter. The task will be difficult because of the lack of raw materials and the while the peasants are hiding their wheat in caches so unsuitable that serious loss is certain to result."

BISHOPS FROWN ON REPRISALS FOR AIR RAIDS

(By Associated Press)

London, July 22.—Reprisals upon German non-combatants for the recent air raids upon London are opposed by the Most Reverend Randall Thomas Davidson Archbishop of Canterbury, in a letter he has written to Sir Thomas Barlow, in response to a request to indicate the principles that ought to be considered. The Archbishop wrote:

"My own point is best expressed in the words of a resolution passed on my motion by the bishops of the province of Canterbury. We recorded our conviction that the principles of morality forbid a policy of reprisal which has as a deliberate object the killing and wounding of non-combatants."

"The key of the situation lies in the intention of the act. Of course in one sense reprisals are of the essence of war. We bombard fortified towns, the object being to harm the enemy's combatant forces."

"But quite different is an attack, the direct object of which is to harm or kill non-combatants, either for reasons of vengeance or in order to promote terror or in hope of deterring the enemy from perpetrating outrages. That is the kind of reprisal in which some people wish us to indulge."

"In my belief such action is we were so mistaken as to adopt it, would be altogether futile as a deterrent; the Germans would always out-distance us in ruthlessness."

HOME NEWS FOR THE SOLDIERS IN THE TRENCHES

Washington, July 22.—"CLIP as well as KNIP for the SAILOR and MARINE" is now the slogan of the Comforts Committee of the Navy League of the United States.

The League is going to keep the sailor and Marine, sent over the seas to battle in touch with events in the U. S. A. by sending him regularly clippings of every sort and description from magazines and newspapers. Everything from Moll and Jeff to Sun editorials will be included in the Jackies' literary menu.

This work was initiated by and is now under the direct supervision of Captain C. H. Harlow, U. S. N., who has his office with the Comforts Committee headquarters of the Navy League of the United States, in this city. His idea is to supplement the comfort outfit sent by patriotic women of the country, through the Comforts Committee of the Navy League, with clippings from newspapers and magazines, arranged in booklet form, which would be of interest to the men on board ship.

To reduce postage costs, and because space to shipment is at a premium, it has been recommended that the stories be cut out separately from the book, attached together with heavy thread, and if possible, bound with brown paper to further protect it. The idea of this is to divide a single magazine, which may contain several stories, among all the men on board a ship.

stroyer, so that while one man is reading a story several of his ship mates may be doing the same thing from the same book. In this way a man can easily thrust such a booklet into his pocket, when suddenly called to quarters, or it can be passed around the ship in a short time, while a more bulky magazine would have to be thrown aside. As these torpedo boats and destroyers are so numerous there is naturally a scarcity of magazines for distribution when one considers that each small boat may contain from eighty to one hundred men in its crew.

A glimpse into the shop of the Comforts Committee headquarters of the Navy League finds several girls hard at work, clipping articles on current topics, religious, scientific and sporting subjects, as well as pictures from comic sheets which they paste to a sheet of heavy paper and place into an envelope in a file arranged according to these subjects. Others are busy separating the bindings from magazines and stitching the stories together for the folders. Attractive pictures cut from magazine covers and illustrations of stories to add to the appearance of the cover are cut out and pasted on these folders. These little booklets are then placed carefully in envelopes which are sent to the various destroyers, torpedo boats and cruisers of the United States to be distributed among their respective crews.

As a naval officer, Captain Harlow thoroughly understands the need for this form of entertainment for the men. "It is surprising," says Capt. Harlow, "how the people of the country are taking hold of this work and the great amount of enthusiasm manifested. It is so encouraging, in fact, that the Navy League hopes that enough material may be prepared to furnish not only the torpedo boats and destroyers of the Navy, but also the battleships with their crews of 1,000 men."

Clubs for this kind of work are being formed throughout the country to work in cooperation with the headquarters of the Comforts Committee in Washington, the work being sent there when completed for distribution by the Navy League to the Postmaster at New York City who is advised by the Navy Department as to what ships can be reached and their whereabouts.

ALL NAVY WON EASILY FROM MANCHESTER

Thomas, pitching for the All-Navy nine on Saturday, had a shade on Dave Sarrette, former Portsmouth star batsman, when the Navy clashed with the Manchester Police team, on the local field. Sarrette pitched good ball but paged one more man than did Thomas and Thomas succeeded, in fanning a couple more of the Manchester cops than Dave had, sailor's scalp to his credit. The game was fast and was won by the Navy nine, 4 to 3.

Manchester's nine had the jump on the visitors until the eighth when the Navy batters gave Thomas fine support and were there with the sick work, hammering eleven hits for a total of fourteen bases, Brackett hitting out a triple and Malloy a two-bagger. In the matter of errors but one was made for the local nine against three by the visitors. Brackett and Cunningham featured for the All-Navy team, Cunningham playing well for the Manchester police.

TRAPSHOOTING IS ONE OF THE OLDEST SPORTS.
Typically an American Pastime it Originated in England and Was Then Brought Here and Perfected.

As far back as 1733 the Sporting Magazine of London, England, mentioned pigeon shooting, which was the forerunner of modern trapshooting, and it was in England that trapshooting first became a recognized sport. However, considerable difference exists between the sport in its infant stages and the present.

Englishmen wanted to get in form for a contest with the team from across the channel, so they started trapshooting. At that time live birds were used—the blue rock pigeon—and not our river and tar "pigeon."

Likewise the trap of those days was quite different from the ones Henderson, German, Clark, Newcomb and others are in the habit of facing. It consisted of a box 8x12 inches, sunk level with the ground, having a sliding lid, which was pulled off the box by means of a string running back of the trigger.

Of course the periwigged gentlemen of that early day with their flintlocks couldn't do much with their "bumblers," but nevertheless we have them to thank for actually starting this great sport.

The first attempt at trapshooting in this country took place in Cincinnati in 1831. Wild pigeons served as targets until the 20 and 25 per cent class became so large they were forced to substitute quail. You "gun bugs" of today, think of shooting at quail with a muzzle loader!

It is impossible to determine just when bird targets came into use. The earliest record on record is that of shooting at glass balls down at Boston in 1508. The trap used was an imported article from England and far from satisfactory, so an American got busy and made a trap that would send these glass balls through space in a more Yankee-like manner. Thereafter, for twenty years, the glass industry was overwhelmed and "barefoot Johnny" steered clear of trapshooting grounds.

Improvements of balls and traps were produced in considerable numbers until 1880, when it came due for Cincinnati to again figure in the formative stages of "The Sport Attaining."

This time to serve as the home of George Loperky, who invented real clay pigeons and a trap to spring them of which our modern "sawyers" and traps are direct descendants.

The subsequent history of this fascinating sport, with its hundreds of thousands of devotees all over our own land and in foreign countries (though in the latter, alas, they are reverting to primitive targets), is being recorded in the columns of the sporting pages of the press.

GERMANS STILL ATTEMPT TO BREAK FRENCH LINES

(By Associated Press)

The French and Russian fronts are the center of the heaviest fighting of the entire war. Between Soissons and Rheims the Germans are continuing their attempts to break through the French lines but the French tenacity is again showing as it did when the tide was stemmed before Verdun.

On the Eastern front in Galicia the Russian line is slowly crumbling before the assaults of the Austrians and Germans and from the disaffection among the Russian troops.

Despite the losses suffered at the hands of the French the Germans again attempted to effect a defeat on General Petains forces at Chemin des Dames when on Sunday they opened on the French positions with heavy artillery and later the lead was shipped from the infantry. But the efforts were fruitless and the German attacking forces were everywhere thrown

HAZEL GALLANT SENT AWAY TO STATE SCHOOL

Woodsville, July 22.—As the closing episode of a 14-year-old girl's escapade Hazel M. Gallant of this place, was placed in the State Industrial School at Amoskeag, N. H., Saturday.

This is the girl who for several days has been in the limelight as a result of leaving home last Sunday morning at 2:30, going by train to Manchester and Boston and returning home early Tuesday morning, claiming she was enticed away from home by one "Timothy Sullivan."

The action taken today was the outcome of a conference between the girl's parents and the local authorities after a thorough investigation failed to substantiate the girl's story of being lured from home. The local authorities are convinced that the affair was a case of wilful misconduct on the part of the girl.

Saving and Hoarding.

A contemporary in commenting upon the difference between saving and hoarding truthfully says that "saving is commendable while hoarding is detestable." It attempts to illustrate its point by saying that A after having saved $30 buys a suit of clothes, a new lounge for the sitting room, a kitchen table or a baby carriage. In short, he spends his money while B, having saved an equal amount, "sifts it down; puts it away in an old pocketbook which he hides in the corner of the bottom drawer."

But the fact is that there is very little money tucked away in old stockings and bottom drawers these days. There was a time when men hid money in these ways, fearing to trust the banks or anybody else with a cent of it, but that time has gone by except in the case of ignorant and distrustful individuals too few in number to be worthy of consideration. Most men in this age know they can put their money where it will be safer than in their own hands, and where it will be earning something while they sleep.

Every sensible man and woman detests hoarding, but it is a grave mistake to think that every man is hoarding who does not spend his money as fast as he earns it. This idea is altogether too prevalent at the present time, and it is keeping many people poor who might by the exercise of reasonable prudence obtain homes of their own and be prepared for the years when they will not be able to work as they do now.

Another very erroneous idea is that money in the savings bank is virtually idle as if "put away in an old pocketbook and hidden in the corner of the bottom drawer." There are many people who believe this, but they are mightily mistaken. Money deposited in the savings bank does not lie idle there. It is put to work immediately in ways that are absolutely safe. Banks do not safeguard other people's money and pay interest on it for nothing. The money is kept constantly at work in the most useful of ways, a large part of savings bank funds going into the buying or building of homes for people who have been shrewd enough to put their surplus earnings into these banks instead of spending all as fast as they earned it.

By too many people the savings bank is not appreciated at its worth. It is in reality one of the greatest aids to the poor man that has ever devised. It is ready to take his money in small amounts and protect it absolutely, to pay a fair rate of interest and to surrender both principal and interest on demand.

The man who has a savings bank account is not a miser. He is simply providing against the day when his earning power will be lessened or ended entirely, as it is the duty of every man to do. No man has a moral right to spend all he earns as he goes, and if this fact were better understood it would be far better for multitudes of American workers. It is not necessary or proper to hoard, but it is necessary to save if proper provision is to be made against the time when earning power wanes while needs are as pressing as ever; if not more so.

A few weeks ago a general in command of one of the country's military departments said there had been enough talk and that the time was at hand for action, yet arrangements have been made to turn loose a lot of speakers to travel about the country and explain to the people the "meaning of the war." The man or woman who does not already understand the meaning of this war will be apt to profit little by listening to the war orators working for pay.

Word comes from France that tobacco is highly prized by soldiers in the trenches, something which should have been understood without any formal statement of the fact. And the result is a bill in Congress authorizing the government to supply every American soldier in France who wants it with one pound of tobacco a month. And it is not at all likely that this bill will be haggled over as long as the food bill has been.

Automobile stealing has been too common for comfort for some time, and it is now evident that there has been developed a class of thieves who believe in the good old doctrine that half a loaf is better than no bread. These operators content themselves with taking the tires and leaving the machines. Resourceful indeed is the American thief.

The American Steel Company knows where its market is for some time to come. All of its product is to be taken by the government at a price which will be fair to both. Under such an arrangement how the business of this mighty industry will hum.

Isn't it a little risky to advertise that it is expected that one man in every fifty of those drafted will be found insane? The train of thought started by such an announcement is liable to result in a sudden and alarming spread of insanity.

America's Determination
(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Not since the Civil War have the streets echoed to the footsteps of so many soldiers as they do now. And this is being witnessed in this city is but a representation of what is going on in scores of cities and towns where National Guard units are mobilizing for Federal service.

These troops are volunteers. The draft is not yet operative. The men drilling now have responded of their own free will to the country's call, and did not wait to be dragged out by the authorities. Many of them are already veterans in the service, having served on the Mexican border or elsewhere. Their association with the newer recruits will be of the greatest benefit to the service.

This is part of America's answer to German ruthlessness. It spells America's determination to bring to bear every ounce of its available strength, if need be, to crush the evil of German efficiency.

That "Heavy Heart."
(From the Hartford Courant)

Heavy is the heart of the Kaiser, so he says, and well it may be. It is, he says, "the most grievous times that have ever fallen to the lot of the German countries and peoples," and the Kaiser himself is to be blamed for them. To be sure he did not bring such times down upon his people intentionally. He thought he was a big toad in a similar capacity upon certain of his neighbors, but he started a bigger rumper than he bargained for. He overestimated his own power and he underestimated the power of the nation that he forced to take up arms to defend themselves against his aggressions; and he underestimated the overwhelming moral power of the whole civilized world aroused to a high state of indignation at German savagery and greed. Heavy as the heart of the Kaiser may be, it is not heavy enough for the Kaiser's misdeeds. His repentance must be still deeper and his penance must be made to fit the misery that he has brought upon the world.

"Oh, Generation of Vipers!"
(From the Louisville Courier-Journal)

"The Bill," Haywood, the general secretary-treasurer of the I. W. W., is out with this fulmination: "They can't stop us. No matter what they do we will go on and on until we—the roughnecks of this world—will have control of all production and work when we please and how much we please. The man who makes the wagon will ride in it himself."

Well, what's the use of talking about anything, but the man who works with his hands. The I. W. W. seeks only that kind of men. The old union labor crowd, headed by Gompers and his ilk, but, bunch, won't get anywhere. They're in with the oppressors half of the time. We don't go after the skilled men, although they are welcome to our organization. We are not looking for the highbrows.

Ours is a roughneck gang. That's what they call us, but when all of our crowd get this thing straight in our minds, we will be in a position to dictate terms to every industry in the world. How? By folding our arms and completely stopping all work until our terms are met.

It will be easy. Wage systems will be no more. The roughnecks, as the highbrows call us, will be the ones running things. And the highbrows will have to get onto our platform. We are not taking up to them "the only right solution of the problem of life in this world is bringing everybody down to our basis of living."

Our Government at present is issuing ration tickets to about a thousand of this gang. Is that the sort of food conservation example it would set us? If the government is going to look after them why not at least put them to work and give them the experience of earning an honest merit?

South Good for Camps
(From the Baltimore American)

Considerable criticism has been dropped out in scattered localities along the southern zone of the United States of the placing of all the training camps for the National Guard contingents along with about half of the draft army camps in the Southern States. This criticism is not based upon just considerations when all the facts and circumstances are taken into the account. General Gorgas, who directed the business of making the Panama zone fit for human habitation, gives an explanation of the military reasons for sending the army divisions to training camps in the South that should be convincing. There seems to be no basis for the charge that there is politics in the placing of the camps.

General Gorgas calls attention to what is obvious upon reflection, namely, that the dominant consideration in the selection of a training camp is to obtain a situation and climate conditions that will be free from weather interference with the field maneuvers and the open-air sports, which latter are really an important phase of the training. In the Southern camps there will be very little time lost because of weather conditions. It is urgently needed that every day should be utilized in military activities—that there should be intensification of the work of training. Climate and not politics, according to General Gorgas, explains the Southern locations. The training at Meade, which is in Maryland not far from Baltimore, is not likely to encounter interfering weather conditions, even during January and February. Winter in Maryland is a very different proposition from winter in Massachusetts or in any locality of the upper tier of states. As the movement to the thirty-two camps will not be effected until September, the heated period of summer will be near over when the concentrations are made.

Sickness Expected
(From the Detroit Free Press)

It is understood that the state militia troops are to be sent to Europe before the snow flies. Is it prudent to take Northerners, accustomed to a temperate climate, and keep them for weeks in the temperatures of the South by way of preparation for a winter in France, where frost and snow will prevail? We send our baseball teams to warm districts in the early spring and the hospital lists they invariably have in the first month or so after their return are anything but encouraging evidence of what is to happen to our fighting boys after their sojourn down south.

Those Who Do Not Deserve Sympathy
(From the New York Herald)

The Crown Prince returns to the front with the prestige of victory—Brooklyn Eagle.

With the accent on the "to." Only at Berlin has the Crown Prince achieved anything bearing remotest resemblance to victory, and that is victory over the German people. Not content with slaughtering them in groves at Verdun, he overhauls them at home when they manifest a desire to have some part in government, a function which he regards his own by divine right.

The fact that the Chinese One is able to "get away with it" is a severe commentary upon the German people than any that could be written.

No Political Shoulder Straps.
(From the Chicago Tribune)

Every American citizen, whether he has a son in the Army or not, should make himself heard by his congressmen and senators on the subject of political military appointments.

The Tribune has known for some time that pressure was being brought upon the War Department to fill places in the Army with men having a political pull. It has been reported from the Capital that a good deal of Secretary Baker's precious time and strength is being taken by gentlemen who are after favors in the way of named shoulder straps for themselves or their political friends. This is no new evil. In fact, it has driven every war secretary to despair since this Republic was founded. But that is no reason it should be tolerated any longer, and if the American people are not asleep they will rise now in their might and wipe that curse out forever.

For a curse it is. When an ignorant is willfully put in charge of men going into battle the crime of willful murder on a large scale. The Government that has been committed, and it is murder upon its citizens to fight overseas when the first consideration, the best possible conditions. In the Civil War politics ruled a great number of appointments to officer's rank. The result was lives by the thousands wasted in battle and camp. This must not happen now. The shortage of officers is no excuse for admitting political pull or any other form of influence which seeks to land in a responsible place a man unfit to fill it.

The Government is pledged and in honor bound to let fitness govern the selection of all officers. There are now at training camps in the United States 40,000 men taking training under the explicit understanding that their work will be recognized. A second camp of 16,000 will soon be ready. Besides these men are the officers and trained men of the Regular Army and National Guard, both those with the colors and those retired. Not a single one of these men should be put aside for a political pull, not a single one put under an unfit officer, who has been given a commission by influence. The report from Washington is to the effect that inasmuch as the training camp graduates will be commissioned as lieutenants and captains, with only a few in the higher grades, the ranks of major and lieutenant colonel may be inundated by the politicians and the friends of the politicians.

We are confident Mr. Baker will stand out against this gross piece of bad faith, this crime against the men who are to fight with the flag. But the pressure upon him and the President should be destroyed by outraged public opinion. The favor-seeking congressmen should hear from home without delay. If there are not trained officers to go around, move the trained officers up and give the noneones and incompetents the subaltern commissions. A second lieutenant just out of West Point, or a National Guardsman, or a training camp graduate is fitter for a majority or a lieutenant colonel than any untrained beneficiary or political influence.

BRITISH DRIVE OFF FLEET OF 20 AIR RAIDERS

Germans Kill 11 Persons and Wound 26 Before Being Dispersed by Guns.

London, July 22.—Another daylight raid carried out over the east coast of England this morning, resulting in the capture of about 20 German airplanes after they had dropped a number of bombs over Felixstowe and Harwich, which killed eleven persons and injured 26. An alarm was sounded in London, but before the Germans could reach any point near the city, they were attacked heavily by defending squadrons of aircraft which speedily caused them to change their minds and beat a hasty retreat.

The casualties as given above were announced in an official statement issued last evening. The damage to property was insignificant, it said.

A patrol of the royal flying corps, said the statement, "encountered some hostile machines returning to Heligoland, and brought down one at sea near the coast."

The following official account of the raid was issued earlier in the day:

"A squadron of enemy airplanes, from 15 to 21, approached Felixstowe and Harwich at 8 o'clock this morning. Some bombs were dropped but the heavy fire from the anti-aircraft defense caused the enemy's formation to split up, part returning overseas and part proceeding south, down the Essex coast. The latter party was heavily engaged by gunfire all down the Essex coast and finally proceeded homeward without dropping more bombs. The raiders were pursued out to sea and heavily engaged by our airplanes but the visibility was low and the difficulties of observation were very great.

The casualties at Felixstowe and Harwich so far are eight killed and 25 injured.

The morning broke bright and sunny, but a thick haze soon appeared. At about eight o'clock the enemy machines were heard and were seen flying high and fast toward the coast. They received a hot reception from the improved defenses, in the shape of anti-aircraft gunfire, and were hardly well over the coast before their formation was broken up. They dropped bombs hastily before retreating.

Observers say that the gunfire which followed the section which went down the Essex coast reached a pitch of unusual intensity. It was the heaviest of this kind which caused the firing for the first time of new warning signals in London.

British planes pursued the Germans well out to sea, fighting vigorously all the time, but handicapped by the low visibility. Reports of heavy firing received from various quarters indicate that the authorities have made considerable improvements in the defenses since the last raid over London.

Today's attempt lasted barely two hours. Thousands of persons turned out along the coast when the British planes went up, in the hope of seeing battles in the air, but the combatants soon disappeared in the haze.

A correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company telephoned from Isle of Thanet that warning signals sounded in a number of coastal towns and that firing was heard soon afterwards.

A number of airplanes which were already in the air proceeded in the direction of the firing, followed by the fighting planes. Soon the signal that the raiders had been driven off was given.

A correspondent of the News of the World wires that seven German tubes crossed the Essex coast flying from the west, at 8.45 o'clock this morning. Others followed at intervals until 9.30. In all, about 20 machines passed out and disappeared toward the sea without dropping bombs.

Some excitement was caused in London by the sounding of the raid warnings, of which the first notice was given in this morning's newspapers. Persons unaware of the intentions of the authorities were convinced that when the firing of signals began that German raiders had again penetrated London's defenses and were showering bombs on the city. At 8.30 o'clock "sound bombs" were sent up from every fire station in the county, forming the usual Sunday morning signal into a din which London now associates with air raids. The signal consisted of three bombs fired at intervals of a quarter of a minute. There were distinct reports as the bombs left the small mortars, and loud ones when they exploded in the air.

Persons who believed anti-aircraft guns were in action made a rush for cover, being urged to do so by the police, who appeared in the streets with placards warning the public to seek shelter. The tube stations were crowded with people. Some persons whose breakfast had been disturbed brought pots of coffee with them and finished their meal on platforms. Early morning services in the city churches proceeded without interruption.

About an hour after the first warning the police again appeared on the streets with placards announcing that all was clear.

There is little doubt an attempt was made to reach London, in giving notice that warning signals would be fired the authorities announced that such warnings would not be given until it appeared from information received from the military that an attack on London was intended.

A correspondent in Essex of the Exchange Telegraph Company reports that he witnessed an aerial battle which lasted almost an hour. A squadron of several German aircraft traveling westward, encountered a number of British planes, which compelled them to turn northward. They went in this direction about half a mile and then veered to the east.

One German machine was cut off from the main body and surrounded by three British airplanes, which drove it in the opposite direction until all four were lost in the haze. The pursuit of the others continued, all the machines climbing to a greater height as they fought. They attained an altitude of 15,000 to 18,000 feet and were soon lost to sight.

IMMUNITY DOES NOT LAST FIVE YEARS

(By Associated Press)

Stockholm, July 22.—Government physicians' reporting of their observations regarding vaccination during the recent smallpox epidemic in the Cayo district express the opinion that the present five-year period established by the law requiring revaccination in certain cases is too long. The results of thousands of vaccinations, they say, demonstrated that the immunity conferred does not last five years.

NOT LIVING UP TO THE LAW

Although the act to provide for the public safety and health of employees in factories and workshops went into effect June 30 of this year, as yet many employers of the state have disregarded the clause which requires them to make a return to the bureau of labor within 30 days after the law became effective stating the number of employees and the nature of the business which they are carrying on. As this section applies to factories, mills, workshops or other manufacturing establishments where 10 or more people are regularly employed the attention of all employers of the State subject to its provisions is called to the fact that they must submit returns to the department within the specified time.

PEOPLES' OPINION

Question of Liquor for Enlisted Men Editor:

"The question of keeping liquor away from enlisted men during the war is something like the state of Maine prohibition. Though the order makes it a little inconvenient it appears that the order did not increase the passenger list of water wagons to any great extent, but on the other hand has made things worse. The men now are drinking any old thing in a bottle, some of it not fit for humane consumption. The government would have done better by allowing the enlisted men beer and prevent the sale of whiskey which causes all the trouble. No enlisted man would ask for any more and no great harm would come from drinking beer. The order of the government not only caused enlisted men to go from beer to whiskey, but it made business good for the junk men who are reaping a harvest on empty bottles picked up in alleys. I do not mean to say that the liquor men are violating any rule in selling, but liquor is obtained in every city where it is sold, and it would have been far better to have prohibited whiskey and allow beer to the men. The hip pocket booze will do more to work against the usefulness of the men in the service than anything I know of."

NAVY NOTES

Will Assume Duties Today

Lieut. William J. Carver, U. S. N., who was appointed to succeed Lieut. E. C. Blakeslee as district communication officer and aid to Commandant William R. Rush of the Boston navy yard will assume his duties today.

Value of the Gun Factory

In a statement explaining his request for an appropriation of $7,500,000 to increase the capacity of the gun factory at Washington navy yard Secretary Daniels declared that contracts for guns, mounts and other ordnance supplies "are becoming increasingly difficult to place."

"I had not the Navy possessed the present factory," continued the statement, "the supply of all ordnance material would be so much less efficient than it is at present that the matter would have undoubtedly been forced to public attention. The matter of additional guns and mounts is most urgent owing to the demands made by our own and other governments for such equipment."

Want More Time

An extension of time has been requested for the work necessary on the U. S. S. Montana.

Time for the Veterans

By order of the President, all veterans of the Civil war, will be granted 30 days off without loss of pay from Aug. 20 to Aug. 27 to attend the national encampment to be held in Boston. If extra time is necessary to make the trip the executive order says it shall be allowed.

Far Duty on Submarines.

Several young officers have been assigned to the Portsmouth navy yard in connection with the construction of the new submarines to which they will later be assigned when the boats are commissioned.

Another Ship Arrives.

The U. S. S. San Francisco arrived in the lower harbor at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning and came to the navy yard berth at 3 o'clock.

Docking Orders.

The U. S. S. Paducah and Astor were floated from the dry dock today and the San Francisco put in on the keel blocks.

NEW HAMPSHIRE
DRAFT APPEALS
BOARD NAMED

Following the recommendation of Governor Henry W. Keyes to the President to have the various branches of industry represented, he has been notified of the appointment of the following District Board of Appeals under the Army Draft law: Edmund Sullivan, Berlin; Dr. George Cook, Concord; Richard A. Cooney, Portsmouth; William L. Carter, Nashua; Samuel O. Titus, Rollinsford.

Mr. Sullivan is a prominent Democratic lawyer and was chairman of the State Executive Commission during Gov. Samuel D. Parker's administration. Dr. Cook is a member of the Concord Draft Board, from which he will resign in order to take the State position. He is the dean of the Concord medical fraternity and was in the United States Army hospital service during the Spanish War. He founded the Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical School Fraternity, which has chapters in almost every State in the Union.

Mr. Cooney is the president of the State Federation of Labor and a member of the New Hampshire Committee of Public Safety, appointed by Gov. Keyes.

Mr. Carter, who is the head of one of the chief industries of Nashua, is president of the New Hampshire Manufacturers' Association and a member of the executive committee of the Committee of Safety.

Mr. Titus, who represents the agricultural interests of the State on the board, came from Ohio to New Hampshire nearly a dozen years ago and bought the large farm in Rollinsford once owned by the late United States Senator Edward H. Rollins. Mr. Titus was the Progressive candidate for Congress in the last New Hampshire District in 1912.

Gov. Keyes will notify the members of the district board today of their appointment to the State board and they will organize at once for a meeting for arrangement and the establishing of permanent headquarters.

BIG CANTONMENT
AT AYER, MASS. IS NOW DEVELOPING

5,000 Workers Transforming
18,000 Acres of Brushland
Into Military City.

Ayer, Mass., July 23.—The big cantonment under construction here, as Camp Devens, is soon to be the temporary home of the thousands of new England men just drafted for the new National Army. It is about one quarter completed, according to estimates of army officers and civilian constructors. The progress made during the first month toward transforming 18,000 acres of brushland into a military city for nearly 40,000 inhabitants is regarded as gratifying, and officially the work was declared today to be "ahead of schedule."

The camp will be one of the most healthful of any of the cantonments in the country, in the opinion of sanitary officers. Its natural features of topography and surroundings are considered ideal and advanced methods of sanitation are being applied to guard to the utmost the health of the young men. Flies and mosquitoes have been made the objects of an energetic effort toward elimination, with much success. Stinkiness has been prevented during the first month of preparation among the 5,000 workmen and soldiers now here, each of whom has been instructed in applied individual sanitation, officers said.

To work out a sanitation scheme for a city of such proportions would, alone, in peace times, have been regarded as requiring months of study, but engineers under the direction of Captain Edward Canfield, U. S. A., a West Point and Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate, have tackled the problem skillfully and have made visible progress. To date nearly 200 buildings, including 67 of the 102 big barracks are already up, the streets are laid out, and heating, lighting, water and drainage construction work is well under way. Six hundred and fifty buildings, including barracks, shower baths and mess halls will be completed with all possible speed as the initial stage of development of the camp, and officers expressed themselves as confident that the cantonment will be ready to this extent for the coming, about the first week in September, of New England's 37,800 recruits.

The plans call also for 420 additional buildings including hospitals, administration offices, assembly halls, stores and mess halls, and these it is not expected to finish until late in the fall.

Like a frontier boom town going up, a big circus just coming to town, or a land company developing a new home site, are the sights and sounds of the cantonment. Hundreds of carpenters with hammer and saw, working on one and two-story buildings of unpainted lumber, which lie in a pear-shaped group, about three great laborer's shacks in a clearing in the woods, about a mile square; army motor trucks brought from the Mexican border, and horse drawn drays loaded with building materials, bumping along new-made roads in seemingly endless file; other motor cars bearing United States army number plates and carrying sun-brown men in khaki at high speed through clouds of dust; here and there, a horseback rider with an armful of blue prints; thousands of laborers toiling by the roadside; a dozen great mechanical trench-diggers scooping up the earth; parties of engineers engaged in surveying over the scrubland on the outskirts; in the distance a group of dun-colored canvas tents of the millitamen on guard duty, and above all the clang of the striking hammers, the droning of the saws, the shouts of the team drivers, the honk of the automobile horns, the crashing of falling timber and the puffing and steaming of freight locomotives—that is the picture of the Ayer cantonment today.

Of most immediate interest is the prospective recruit who comes to look over the future training quarters are the barracks. Those for the officers are one story in height, and those for the men of two stories. They stand each on a score of big foundation posts, and are without cellars. Outside, the structures will be covered with tarred paper. The interior will be finished with wall board. Officers' barracks will be used exclusively for sleeping purposes. The barracks for the men have a kitchen and mess hall on the ground floor and dormitory to accommodate a company of 200 men on the floor above. The showers will be separate buildings.

The camp is to be electrically lighted throughout. Linemen at present are at work stringing wires from Leominster in order that power, generated at plants beside water falls on the Upper Deerfield river in the far northwestern end of the state, can be brought here. Supplying the camp daily with 2,000,000 gallons of fresh drinking water has also been one of the principal problems met. Wells are being drilled and from a large standpipe the water will be piped to the various buildings of the cantonment.

The camp as now planned contains no provision for a parade ground. Intensive training in modern methods of field warfare will take place in the adjacent countryside. Cross country marches will take the place of dress parades. Features of trench fighting, including bomb throwing and the erection and penetration of wire entanglements, will be worked out in sections of the cantonment specially equipped.

BISHOP WORRIED ABOUT MARRIAGE
IN ENGLAND

(By Associated Press)
London, July 23.—The Bishop of Peterborough, is worried about the marriage problem after the war and has called attention to the possibility that, in view of the number of men killed in the war, women may have more difficulty in finding husbands than heretofore.

"One grave question of the future," he said, "possibly the near future, is the idea of marriage which will prevail. It is possible that the holy estate will be attacked in a way we have never known; we may be confronted by efforts of many people, in view of the present unprecedented situation. 'What is to be the equivalent of matrimony and other work,' he asked. 'Where are the forces that have been generated to find their outlet? Some scope must be for the surprising energy of the war has brought forth. To that problem the church must find the answer, and not a mere routine answer.'"

PROSPECTORS

One of the magazines has been retelling the romantic story of the prospector. He goes forth loaded with a thousand chances against his finding a thing worth while. But he may, and that is what comforts him for his hardships happen upon a bonanza, and he is entitled to end his days as one of the sudden rich.

In the Midwest and East we have our prospectors. They are known as deer hunters. Every year at the open season they harken into the woods the mountains and the neglected waste places. They have guns, tents, long knives, cooking utensils of expensive design, strange costumes, hold glasses, cough medicines and sun cans. Also they have what the prospector does not always carry namely, licenses. They may not buy a particle of game. But again—hurrah—they may bring down a settler, a valuable friend, a guide—over a deer.

As between being a prospector and the Western type or that of the East the far Westerner seems to have advantages. He doesn't have to mourn at so many funerals.—Toledo Blade.

AIKOS SLOWLY DYING OUT.

Comparatively Few Remain of Historic Race of Aborigines of Northern Japan.

Investigators call attention to the fact that the historic race of the Aikos the Aborigines of Northern Japan, is slowly dying out. It is estimated that these residents of Hokkaido the most northerly of the Great Islands making up the Japanese empire, are now no more than 20,000.

The Aikos, a dark, picturesque appearing people, live in groups of twenty to forty houses, in scattered districts on the island. In spite of ceaseless efforts on the part of the central government and each prefectural government in their behalf, which give them allotted portions of land, provide them with habitations, give them instructions in farming and furnish them with necessary education, they nevertheless show no sign of benefiting from the care taken of them.

Japanese writers term them an indolent, improvident race and declare that both men and women are addicted to drinking and appear to regard anything done or their benefit as a nuisance.

The male Aikos pass their time in hunting and fishing. The women are described as more industrious. Bear hunting is the great occupation of the men but the bears, like the Aikos themselves are becoming fewer. The men have dark hair and long. Their faces are usually tattooed.

The "bear festival" as it is called, consists of the offering of a slaughtered young bear as a sacrifice to the gods. The young animal is sacrificed for about five years for this purpose. On the occasion of the sacrifice the men and women join in grand banquets and merrymaking. The Aikos, like many other primitive people worship the sun.

MEDIUM YIELD
FOR MOST CROPS
IN SWEDEN

(By Associated Press)

Stockholm, July 23.—Crop reports from all provinces of Sweden for May 31 show an average condition for the whole kingdom markedly below normal. A medium yield for the most crops. Two weeks of scorching drought since the date of this report will have materially lowered this average. Some provinces report almost a total failure of cereal crops. The figures for the most important crops follow, marked on the basis of 5 for a very good crop, four good, three medium, two decidedly below medium and one practically a failure:

Winter wheat, 2.5; winter rye, 2; spring wheat, 2.7; spring rye, 2.9; barley, 3; oats, 2.9; beans, 2.9; potatoes, 2.6; sugar beets, 2.5; hay, 2.7.

LIVING ON CALORIES

The cheap eating in the world is rice and peanuts, measured by the calories, which constitute the only real test. The former costs 5 cents per 1,000 calories and the latter 6 cents. So that if a person would eat a good helping of rice and wind up by a plentiful desert of peanuts he would get more muscle, brain, nerve and bone out of it than he would out of a diet of roast beef and potatoes. There is no attention paid to the value of food in practical living. Our sole guide is what hits our appetite. We want what "we'd rather" as the poor woman told Jane Addams. It is going in and buying potatoes by the pile, without regard to the bushels or pecks. There is twice as much living in some kinds of food as in others and yet we pass up our plate perfectly unconcerned whether it comes back with 500 or 1,000 calories. That is one reason we are poor.—Columbus (O.) Journal.

INTENSE HEAT CAUSES UNTOLD SUFFERING

Two Dead in Boston--Storms Hold Up Trolley and Telephone Service in Maine and Vermont--No Relief in Sight.

Without doubt Sunday was the hottest day of the year and the suffering was intense in the larger cities in New England. In this section it was the hottest day on record for years with the thermometer registering between 92 and 96 in the shade. Little relief was given by the wind which blew from the south. Even this died down with the sun and at midnight the temperature stood close to the 90 mark with little chance of relief as the threatening skies cleared and the hopes of showers faded away. Those who attempted to escape the heat by trips to the beach were disappointed. At both York and Hampton beaches large crowds arrived with each incoming car but the nearness to the water didn't help matters a great deal. So far as is known there were no frustrations reported here or in this section.

Two Die in Boston

Boston, July 22.—Today was the hottest day in Boston for ten years and two deaths resulted from the heat.

HOLLIS FIGHTS RESOLUTION AGAINST HOOVER

Senator Henry E. Hollis and Reed of Missouri had a heated clash during the discussion of the amendment of Senator Reed in which he got after Mr. Hoover and attempted to block his appointment stating that he, Mr. Hoover had been away from the country so long that he lost his right to vote.

Hollis attacked the amendment as unjustified.

"It is no secret to the Senate or to the country that the Senator from Missouri is bitterly opposed to Mr. Hoover," said Senator Hollis. "He was mercilessly cross-examined by the Senator during his recent appearance before the Senate committee. The Senator treated him much as though Mr. Hoover had been on trial for some crime in a police court—as though Mr. Hoover was a chicken thief."

Senator Reed jumped to his feet, protesting.

That statement is absolutely false, exclaimed Mr. Reed. "I did not say that. The Senator does not state the truth."

"I think the chair ought to call the Senator to order," said Senator Hollis, addressing Vice-President Marshall. "This is no place to indulge in words of that sort."

"The printed records will show," Mr. Reed went on.

"Or in discussions or in altercation," proceeded Mr. Hollis.

Senator Reed put the question of personal privilege.

Senator Williams of Mississippi criticized Senator Reed for calling another Senator on the floor of the House.

"I did not use that language," insisted Mr. Reed. "It remains for the Senator from Mississippi to use it."

"The Senator said 'totally untrue and absolutely false,'" insisted Senator Williams. "It is plainly palpable and obvious, to every Senator who has been listening to him for some days that the Senator from Missouri has been engaged in the business of prosecuting Mr. Hoover."

"If I had my way I would appoint one man to take charge of this food control and I would name Mr. Hoover in the bill. I would name him particularly because of the vicious attacks that have been made on him."

Senator Ashurst of Arizona approved Senator Williams' stand, he said. He characterized Senator Reed's attacks as wicked.

"Those who would overthrow Mr.

Charles Pendergast, a newspaper compositor, dropped on Newspaper Row this afternoon and died a few minutes later at the hospital where he was rushed. Another man who is as yet unidentified, dropped in Newspaper Row in the afternoon.

The official temperature was announced by the weather bureau was 92 but it was several degrees higher in the streets.

Storm in Portland

Portland, July 22.—For two and a half hours tonight street car traffic over the Cumberland Electric line, which operates in Portland, the suburbs, Old Orchard, Biddeford and Saco, was at a standstill as the result of lightning striking the main power house and putting it out of commission. After repairs were made it was some time before the cars were again in motion as the telephone system was also out and all instructions to the motormen had to be transmitted by automobiles.

Storms also affected the telephone lines in Vermont and much damage was felt in many sections.

ELKS MILLION FOR HOSPITAL AND FAMILIES

ELKS MILLION FOR HOSPITAL AND FAMILIES

(By Associated Press)

New York, July 22.—The $1,000,000 war relief fund of the E. P. O. Elks will be used for the establishing of base hospitals for American soldiers behind the firing lines in France, for the relief of families of soldiers called to the colors by the draft and for the training of disabled soldiers in useful work on their return. It was announced this afternoon by John K. Tenner, chairman of the Elks War Relief committee. The announcement is contained in a report of the committee to the Grand Lodge following a conference held today by the committee and Henry P. Davidson, chairman of the American Red Cross.

The 400,000 members of the Elks will be notified tomorrow by the Grand Lodge that they are expected to raise the $1,000,000 fund which was unanimously voted by the Grand Lodge at the annual convention held in Boston two weeks ago.

FAVORS THE ABOLITION OF CHURCH DEANS

London, July 22.—Deans of the Church of England or rather of the Cathedral of England, are luxuries and should be abolished, in the opinion of the Right Reverend Arthur P. W. Ingram, Bishop of London who declared that the three hundred and fifty thousand dollars spent yearly on deans is wasted money. "It is with no disrespect that I say it," he declared, "but I believe that the whole idea of a dean being at the head of a cathedral and the bishop having no right whatever in his see, is an uncatholic thing. In some cathedrals a Bishop cannot even preach without the leave of the dean and chapter. There are excellent men among them but in money spent yearly is more needed for the Bishops of the new dioceses which are required."

DROWNED IN SWIMMING HOLE ON SUNDAY

Albert Cilley of Seabrook, aged seventeen years, lost his life late Sunday afternoon while swimming in Green's Lake, Hampton Falls. It is supposed that he was attacked with cramps and sank before help could reach him.

The body was recovered and was later viewed by Medical Referee George K. Pender of Portsmouth.

GERMAN RAIDER AGAIN SEEN IN ATLANTIC

(By Associated Press)

An Atlantic Port, July 22.—Due west of Spain and about two-thirds distance across the Atlantic, a steamer, believed to be one of the unnamed German raiders, was reported today by a British steamship which arrived here. The commander of the steamship reported that he escaped from the hostile vessel.

SIAM DECLARES WAR ON AUSTRIA AND GERMANY

(By Associated Press)

London, July 22.—Siam has declared a state of war existing between that country and Austria and Germany according to a dispatch received here tonight from Reuters' correspondent. The dispatch comes from Bangkok.

Nine German steamships with a total tonnage of 19,000 tons have been seized by the government, the report added. In the dispatch the government of Siam declared that the step was necessary "to uphold the sacred doctrine of the right of self government against militarism and oppression, especially against small nations."

As a further step against Austria and Germany the government of Siam has ordered the arrest of all Germans and Austrians within her borders and the order has been executed in a large measure.

LIE IN WAIT FOR U. S. TRANSPORTS

Big German Submarines Half Way Across to Cape Race; Many Been Damaged.

An Atlantic Port, July 22.—British officers arriving yesterday said that a number of German submarines had met with casualties in various ways and had to put back to their base along the German coast or at Zebrugge in Belgium for repairs. This took considerable time they said as the parts of the submarines were made at factories in Bremen, Essen, Elberfeld, Crefeld and other manufacturing cities in Germany.

Also a number of large submarines had been sent out from 500 to 600 miles in the Atlantic ocean to wait for United States transports, and others had been dispatched along the Spanish coast from the Straits of Gibraltar to the Mediterranean to look for French and Italian transports.

One of these big U-boats attacked the Royal Mail steam packet Demerara on July 3 off the coast of Spain and sank her with a torpedo. The passengers and crew were all saved and it was stated that the Demerara had gone down in shallow water and there was a possibility of salvaging her after the war.

The officers said the Germans had been trying to get the Demerara ever since June 3, 1915, when she sank a submarine with gunfire off the Portuguese coast while on her way home from Buenos Aires.

Captain G. S. Gillard who was in command at the time, received a reward of $2000 from the British admiralty for being the first merchant service captain to sink one of the U-boats. The German admiralty offered a reward for the capture of Captain Gillard and he afterward got a shore appointment with the company.

The Demerara was a twin screw steamship of 11,181 gross tonnage, built in 1912 in Harland and Wolff yard at Belfast. She was 600 feet long, 62 feet beam and 49 feet depth of hold.

According to information brought by the officers who arrived yesterday, the latest type of U-boats which are now cruising half way between Cape Race N. P., and the coast of Ireland are over 300 feet long, carry two 5-inch guns of smaller calibre and have a cruising radius of 15,000 miles.

FOR THAT EXTRA GLASS OF JELLY

"You've all heard that old saw about what happened to one man just for the lack of a horseshoe nail," said Uncle Jim B., coming into the village store one morning. "Well, I can tell you a tale that will lay it in the shade. It was a recent happening at our house. We had company in the house that planned to leave on that early morning train this morning and mother and the girls got up before day break to get an extra good breakfast. The table was decked out with a fresh tablecloth and all the best china and glassware, and they had fried chicken and made cream gravy and preserves and goodness knows what all."

"But just before they called the company out, mother decided that she wanted one more glass of jelly to put on. One of the girls came up out of the cellar through the trap door that opens in the dining room, and when she had set the pitcher of cream on the table she climbed up on a chair on the other side of the table to get the jelly off the top closet shelf. Coming down she tipped the chair over, throwing her against the dining table. Of course that turned the table over, and as it went over all the best dishes and that wonderful breakfast laid through the open trap door, landing with a smash at the bottom of the cellar."

"There wasn't time to get another breakfast before train time, and not much left in the house to get, either. So you see the company was disappointed, the women folk were just plagued to death, and all the best things ruined, all for that extra glass of jelly—how you better believe I didn't stay around here to quote that old saw in them."—Hullamapah News.

"Doesn't it give you a terrible feeling when you run over a man?" they asked him.

"Well, if he's a large man," replied the automobilist. "It does give one a pretty rough jolt."—Ladies Home Journal.

NEW ARMY OF WOMEN WILL REPLACE MEN

Silver Bay, N. Y., July 21.—"As women enter industries in rapidly increasing numbers to replace the men serving the military forces, the need of protective measures becomes even more pressing than in time of peace," declared Irene Osmond Andrews, assistant Secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation, in an address last night at the Convention of the Young Women's Christian Association. "All existing safeguards against speeding up, lengthened hours and bad conditions should be upheld in the interest both of maximum and sustained output, and of human conservation."

Experience in England and France was cited as a demonstration not only of the great extent to which in war time leave their homes to join the industrial army, but also of the increased importance of strict provisions for safety first and health first. "Women who really take the places of men should receive the pay of men," said Mrs. Andrews. "They should all be protected against bad surroundings, injurious tasks, speeding up and exploitation, moral and physical. This new advent of women into gainful occupations also emphasizes the need of universal health insurance to offer medical care, cash payments, and maternity benefits to tide the workers over periods of sickness without destitution and impaired efficiency."

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE OF MURDER

(By Associated Press)

Milton, Mass., July 22.—James Coulter killed his wife Margaret today in the presence of their four small children by shooting. The police believe that insane jealousy was the motive for the crime.

HALF MILLION LOST IN FIRE IN CLEVELAND

(By Associated Press)

Cleveland, July 22.—A half million dollar property loss occurred this afternoon when the New York Central and Big Four Railroad freight shed was destroyed by fire with all of the contents. Defective wiring was the cause, according to railway officials but Fire Commissioner Wallace is not satisfied with this version and an investigation has been ordered. The officials say they have no cause to believe that the fire was of incendiary origin.

MAY ENLIST IN ARMY OR NAVY THOUGH CALLED

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 22.—The men called for examination under the working of the selective conscription drawing last week may still enlist in the army and navy but not the marine corps until the order to appear before the local exemption boards for examination is issued, which will probably be in about ten days. This statement was issued this afternoon by Provost Marshal General Crowder. This is the last opportunity for men registered under the conscription act to select their own arm of the service.

RUSSIA'S FOREIGN TRADE IN 1916

European Russia imported $545,552,000 worth of goods in 1916, an increase of no less than 100 per cent over the total for 1915, according to a compilation from official Russian statistics made public today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of the Department of Commerce. Last year's imports fell only $3,000,000 short of the figure for the normal year 1913. As a matter of fact, since the official figures do not include munitions the value of the goods actually received and requiring transportation must have been greatly in excess of the value recorded.

When it is considered that in 1916 European Russia received goods by two routes only (Archangel and Scandinavia-Finland), while goods were entered at 44 ports in 1913, it is easier to appreciate the tremendous freight traffic that the port of Archangel and the Russian railroads were called upon to handle and the inevitable congestion that has made necessary the strict limitation of imports.

In the original figures, stated in cables, there was an apparent increase in the 1916 imports of 41 per cent over 1917. The fall in ruble exchange has been allowed for in the Bureau's statement by making the conversions for 1913 at the normal rate of 51.5 cents to the ruble and those for 1916 at 31.8 cents. In the big import returns for 1916, however, high prices constitute an important (though indeterminate) factor, which counterbalanced to some extent the decline in the exchange value of the ruble.

The effect of the war was even more apparent in the export trade of 1916 ($151,460,000), which was less than one fourth of the normal exports of 1913 ($733,789,000), though nearly 23 per cent more than the exports of 1915. The growth last year in the total trade, which amounted to $697,313,000, as against $395,254,000 in 1915, represents chiefly the remarkable increase in imports.

The most important contributors to the Russian market in 1916 were the United Kingdom and the United States. An extraordinary increase over 1913 (4.735 per cent) was made by Japan, whose energetic conquests of foreign markets since the war started has attracted attention in Russia, as well as in South Africa and Australia. In relative increase over 1913 the United States takes second place, the percentage being 252. Other countries that showed a remarkable growth of sales to Russia between 1913 and 1916 are: The following: Sweden, 250 per cent; Finland, 157 per cent; the United Kingdom, 123 per cent; Norway and France, each 58 per cent.

As might be expected, the articles imported in largest quantities were those directly or indirectly connected with the war. Machinery and apparatus, the largest item in value ($9,508,000), represented only 28 per cent of the quantity imported in 1913, but 49 per cent of the value. The average price per short ton was $211 in 1913 and $406 in 1916. The United States and the United Kingdom were the sources of the largest machinery imports, their respective shares in 1916 being 27,000 and 23,000 tons. The shortage and high price of paper are reflected in the greatly increased quantity imported in both 1915 and 1916 (156,000 and 236,000 tons respectively, as compared with 152,000 tons in 1913) and the exceedingly high valuation placed upon the 1916 imports. The valuation per ton was about $82 in 1913 and $128 in 1916, as compared with $107 in 1914. Almost all the paper imports come from Finland and represent the principal article exchanged by that country for Russian food products. Copper imports (30,200 tons, valued at $17,322,000) increased over four times in quantity, as compared with the normal year 1913, and almost 3 times in value. The United States supplied four fifths of the quantity imported in 1916. Last year marked Japan's first contribution to the Russian copper imports at European ports, the amount being 1,200 tons, valued at $796,000.

Coal imports (1,016,000 tons, valued at $14,572,000), practically all of which came from the United Kingdom, represented only one-eighth of the normal quantity (8,358,000 tons in 1913) but nearly 40 per cent of the normal value. The fuel shortage in Russia, which has been brought about by the combination of decreased coal imports with the loss of the Polish mines and increased industrial activity, was shown in the greatly augmented purchases of browned from Finland, imports of which rose from 506,000 tons in 1913 to 1,499,000 tons in 1916.

The marked decline in imports of raw cotton represented partly a shifting of trade routes. While the amount received at ports of European Russia declined from 720,000 bales of 500 pounds in 1913 to 56,000 bales in 1916, the imports over the Asiatic frontiers increased from 148,000 bales in 1913 to 396,000 bales in 1916. The 1916 valuation per bale showed a marked advance over that of 1913 ($34 and $68, respectively), and the total value therefor showed a decline of 36 per cent, whereas the total quantity imported over both European and Asiatic frontiers was only half that of 1913. However, large supplies of Russian cotton were available in 1916 from the bumper crop of 1915; and this fact, together with the loss of supplies in the territory occupied by the German army, probably shared with the difficulties of transportation the responsibility for the diminished imports.

There were the expected increases in such war items as boots and shoes, paper, train trucks, his auto truck on a crossing here. His nephew who was with him was severely injured.

chemicals. Sales of these articles to Russia by the United States were as follows in 1915 and 1916, respectively: Boots and shoes, $1,871,000 and $8,333,000; wire manufactures, $5,809,000 and $6,996,000; leather, $5,374,000 and $3,058,000; harness, $67,000 and $1,575,000; automobiles, chassis, etc., $6,112,000 and $7,408,000; and chemicals, $2,086,000 and $1,131,000. In 1916 the United Kingdom, with a total of $1,057,000, took from the United States the lead in leather exports to Russia. Wool and woolen materials came almost entirely from the United Kingdom, which supplied $9,226,000 worth of wool out of a total of $10,495,000 and $16,778,000 worth of woolen materials out of a total worth $20,102,000. Other large supplies from British sources were chemicals ($13,741,000) and boots and shoes ($15,795,000). The principal articles in the trade with Japan were raw silk ($4,891,000), knit goods ($2,050,000), and cotton textiles ($1,682,000), all of which have come from Japan to European Russia in considerable quantities only since the war started.

In the export trade, Finland, with $33,320,000, occupied first place, which has been held by the United Kingdom in 1916; while the United Kingdom, with $57,003,000, was second. France increased its share from $6,622,000 in 1915 to $20,535,000 in 1916, and the United States from $1,257,000 in 1915 to $4,442,000 in 1916. A part of these increases represented an actual growth in the volume of the export trade, and a part was due to rising valuations. Only the values are given for the total trade by countries.

Breadstuffs and legumes ($33,900,000) constituted 22 per cent of all exports ($151,460,000) from European Russia in 1916, as compared with 42 per cent in 1913. About two-thirds of the total quantity in 1916 and 1915 went to Finland, which received in those two years more than the normal amount. France bought 60 per cent more wheat from Russia in 1916 than in 1915 (235,000 tons and 144,000 tons, respectively). All the sugar exports, which amounted to 44,000 tons, valued at $3,634,000, in 1916, as compared with 18,000 tons, valued at $1,062,000, in 1915, went to Finland.

Flax shipments in 1916 (114,000 tons, valued at $31,247,000) represented 70 per cent of the value of 1913 exports but only about 40 per cent of the quantity. The quantity exported, however, increased 66 per cent over the figures for 1915, and these large shipments went to the United Kingdom (99,000 tons, valued at $23,856,000), France (14,000 tons), and the United States (2,400 tons). With the cutting off of the German market, wool exports showed a marked decline, but last year's figures indicate a decided recovery in the quantity shipped (376,000 tons, as compared with $58,800 tons in 1915), as well as a noteworthy increase in value $13,172,000 in 1916, as against $10,725,000 in 1915). Exports to the United Kingdom of bawls ($49,000 tons valued at $12,997,000) and of flux together constituted almost one-fourth of the total value of exports from European Russia. These two articles were also the important items (besides wheat) in the shipments to France. It may be regarded as significant that France imported 185,000 tons of lumber from Russia in 1916, an increase over 1915 of 2,120 per cent.

The comparatively large quantity of eggs exported (36,000 tons in 1916, as against 16,000 tons in 1915) represented increases in the three principal kinds—sugar-beet seed, linseed, and clover seed. In spite of transportation difficulties, the United States managed to secure 2,900 tons of sugar-beet seed valued at $726,000, of which no shipments were made to this country from European Russia in 1915. For skins from European Russia came to the United States in more than three times the quantity imported in 1915 (659,000 pounds and 222,000 pounds, respectively), but even the 1916 total was only about one-sixth of the quantity purchased from Russia and shipped direct in 1913.

KILLED INSTANTLY BY TRAIN.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 22.—Harold W. Helmes, a milkman, was instantly killed this morning when the new paper train struck his auto truck on a crossing here. His nephew who was with him was severely injured.

KAISER CALLS 2,000,000 IN ANSWER TO U. S.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 22.—Germany's answer to America's draft was received at the War Department today through confidential channels. The Kaiser has called 2,000,000 to the colors for March 1. The reports indicate that 2,200,000 reservists are being prepared for the front.

It is impossible to get precise details concerning the ages and fighting capacity of these men. Some of them undoubtedly have been at the front in previous campaigns. Others are supposed to be men who have been invalided home for months.

These figures represent Germany's supreme fighting forces. It is assumed the men have been called to meet the onslaught which the Allies are expected to direct against the Hindenburg line after the American Army begins operations in the first months of the spring.

While the German military machine is preparing to make its greatest effort against the Allied drive, every indication received in official circles points to the fact that internal conditions in Germany are getting worse daily and that nothing but the Rumanian crops apparently can protect the people from the ravages of hunger.

SPEAKER SAFE EVANS CALLED IN THE DRAFT

Cleveland, July 22.—Tris Speaker, the star outfielder of the Cleveland American team and for years the star of the Red Sox, is probably safe from the first draft. His number was reached when the 1917th number was drawn. He registered at Highland City, Texas. Late reports show that Joe Evans, third baseman, is the only man on the Cleveland team who will be called to serve the colors. He was in the first fifty called at Meridian, Miss., his home.

Pitcher Jim Bagby was also called but will likely be exempted because of his wife and two children.

"PEACE MEETING" CARRIED OUT IN QUIET ORDER

(By Associated Press)

Boston, July 22.—Police and a Provost Guard of soldiers and sailors kept complete order today in the city and allowed the holding of a "peace meeting" on Boston Common of the Workmen's Council of Greater Boston which was broken up on July 1 after the Socialist headquarters had been wrecked and the parade disbanded by rioting by citizens, sailors and soldiers. There were 3000 or more in attendance.

LIGHTNING SETS $6,000 BLAZE ON DERRY FARM

Derry, July 22.—Lightning struck the barn on a farm owned by Joseph Hood two miles from this village Saturday afternoon and burned the barn, shed, outbuildings, 1 of the large house a horse, two pigs and a dog. The Derry firemen succeeded in saving the large house. The loss is $6000, insured for $1500.

FIND WOMAN 119 YEARS OLD

Copenhagen, July 22.—The makers of the census in the occupied districts in Russian Poland have found in a Court land Village a Lithuanian woman 119 years old says a Berlin dispatch. Church records attest her age. She was 14 years old when Napoleon's "grand army" marched into Russia.

ESCAPES POLE STRIKES WALL

Soldier on Motorcycle Injured on Highway East of York Beach.

A soldier from one of the Maine militia companies had a narrow escape from a more serious injury and probably death on the Maine state highway between York Beach and Cape Neddick. He was riding a motorcycle when they met an auto on a sharp curve. They were so close that neither had much time for action, and the soldier, in turning from the highway barely escaped a telephone pole but fetched up against a stone wall. He was cut and bruised about the legs but managed to continue on his way.

Wallis Sands was alive with hundreds of large silver hake Sunday morning and after taking a supply for breakfast, the cottagers buried the others.

COONEY HEADS FEDERATION FOR SECOND TIME

Other Officers Elected by N. H. Federation at Berlin.

At the recent meeting of the New Hampshire State Federation of Labor held in Berlin, Richard A. Cooney of this city was elected president for the second time. The convention went on record against absolute prohibition during the war and took up many matters which a legislative committee will look after in the interest of organized labor during the next session of the New Hampshire legislature. The next convention will be held in Keene.

The name of President Cooney was placed in nomination by Charles E. Lewis, one of the delegates from this city. The officers elected are the following:

President—Richard A. Cooney, Portsmouth.

Secretary and Treasurer—John J. Coyne, Manchester.

First Vice President—Charles L. Beane, Franklin.

Second Vice President—Lewis A. Morse, Gorham.

Third Vice President—Victoria St. Clair, Lebanon.

Fourth Vice President—William Lynes, Manchester.

Fifth Vice President—M. H. O'Neil, Keene.

Sixth Vice President—Frank H. Thomas, Rochester.

Seventh Vice President—Arthur Spiller, Concord.

WOODEN SHIPS, NOT STEEL, TO BE BUILT HERE

When the contracts are signed for the ships to be built on the Piscataqua, it will call for thirty wooden ships. The Herald will state that with authority. The row in the ship building commission has held up the project. As is well known, Chairman Donham wants to build wooden ships, while General Goethals sticks for steel ships.

THE TEST OF ECONOMY

The ultimate economy of paying the price of a good shoe has never been questioned. Today good shoes cost more than formerly, but it is equally sure that they were never more economical. The test of economy is getting the full measure of service out of a shoe. A good shoe can be worn out and continue to look well in the process. Our shoes can be counted on to give that sort of service.
